Today we are visiting the Morean Glass Studio.

We will watch a glass blowing demonstration.

The entrance to the Morean Glass Studio is located behind the Morean Arts Center Museum.

We will enter through the glass studio’s main entrance.

We will enter the Morean Glass Studio through the gift shop. The greeter will welcome us to the studio.

The Morean Glass Studio has a lot of beautiful glass artwork. Some of these glass pieces are made during the daily glass blowing demonstrations.

I will keep my hands at my sides. The art is very delicate, and it could break if I touch it. I will walk through the museum slowly so there will be no accidents and everyone will be safe.

If I need something to play with, I can use a fidget from the Distract Pak.

To the right of the main entrance, there is a small hallway. The bathrooms and water fountain are here in this hallway.

After we look at the glass artwork in the gift shop, we will go watch a glass blowing demonstration.

To get to the glass blowing demonstration area, we will walk down a long hallway and go through the red door on the right.

The glass blowing demonstration area is outside in a covered open-air workshop. The workshop is surrounded by a chain-link fence.

While in the glass blowing demonstration workshop, I will sit on the bleacher benches.

I will not cross the orange lines on the floor.

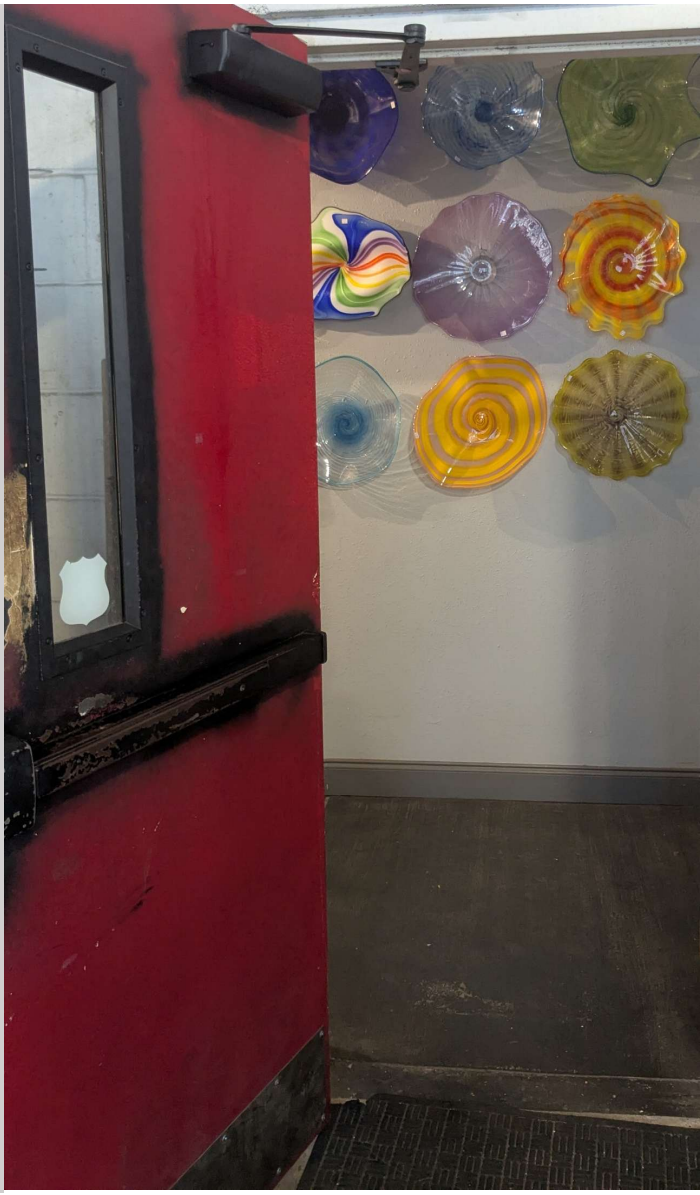

The glass blowing demonstration may overwhelm my senses.

The area is hot because glass blowing involves the use of furnaces. The glow from the furnaces and the hot glass is intensely bright. If the light is bothering me, I can close my eyes. Some of the equipment, including fans, is loud. If the sounds are bothering me, I can cover my ear.

The Distract Pack has headphones and sunglasses that I can use.

When the glass blowing demonstration is over, we will go back through the red door. We will exit through the gift shop.

I can use this map to help me find my way around the Morean Glass Studio.

The glass blowing demonstration was really neat!
Thank you glass blowers!
